DEFENCE OFFERS TO SETTLE WITH CRIME

MOVE PROVES AN ELEVENTH HOUR SURPRISE

Crown Closes and Court Refuses to Take Case From Jury

ARGUMENT OF COUNSEL OPENS

Justice Ives' Summing-up May Be Made Before Evening

The George P. Smith case will be in the hands of the jury late this afternoon or early this evening, according to present indications. Counsel's addresses to the jury started at 2 o'clock this afternoon and if they are not lengthy it is expected that Mr. Justice Ives' summing-up will be made before evening and that by 6 o'clock at latest the jury will be able to retire to consider their verdict.

There is still a possibility, however, that Mr. Justice Ives will adjourn his summing-up until Saturday morning, in which event the jury will remain locked up again overnight, making their decision early in the morning.

Chief of Exhibits
A mass of exhibits in the case will be given to the jury, documents filed this morning by the defence, and a list of exhibits to be shown to the jury. It is expected that the jury will be able to retire to consider their verdict by 6 o'clock at latest.

COMMITTEE IS NAMED FOR CUSTOMS PROBE

OTTAWA, Feb. 4.—Hon. G. H. Ingham, minister of customs and excise, moved at the opening of the house this afternoon the naming of a special committee to probe the customs charges in the case of the Canadian steamship company.

Mr. Ingham commented on the progress and results of the committee of the committee as four Conservative, four Liberal and one Progressive. I would have preferred to have even number and announced more nearly to the size of the committee in the house, said Mr. Ingham, but the composition of the committee is expressive of the present composition of this parliament.

Mr. Ingham moved that the committee be composed as follows: J. C. Elliott, P. C. M. Morrison, J. E. B. Poirer and D. Donaghy. Conservatives; J. C. Elliott, P. C. M. Morrison, J. E. B. Poirer and D. Donaghy. Liberals; D. M. Kennedy of Peace River.

This motion was adopted without dissent.

MAYORS ASK PREMIER FOR FINANCIAL AID

Mayor Blatchford Acts as Spokesman of Delegation

LIQUOR PROFIT DIVISION SOUGHT

Round-table Conference to Discuss Question Suggested

With the object of obtaining assistance from the provincial government in surmounting financial problems, a delegation of the city mayors and aldermen of the Edmonton city council interviewed Premier J. E. Brownlee Friday morning.

Mayor Blatchford acted as spokesman of the delegation and with him were Messrs. Hardy, Loh, and Blatchford.

One of the questions most discussed by Mayor Blatchford was a division of the liquor profits on a pro rata basis according to population. This, he said, would be a fair and equitable way of distributing the liquor profits.

Another question discussed was the division of the liquor profits on a pro rata basis according to population. This, he said, would be a fair and equitable way of distributing the liquor profits.

How to Be Unpopular

Dorothy Dix

It Takes More Than Beauty and Social Position to Make for Popularity — No Girl Will Have Friends Who Is Catty and Mean to Other Girls or Snippy and Condescending to Men

A girl who is unusually pretty, unusually intelligent, well educated and of fine social position complained to me the other day that she was lonely and that she had no friends other than her mother and father. I told her that she was not alone in this. I told her that other girls' cordiality to her was short-lived and that men would call on her once or twice and come no more.

The girl wondered why.

It was because she possessed the gift for inspiring liking, but she does not know how to use it. She is like the peach that is beautiful and juicy and luscious to look at but that she did not like to bite when she was asked to do so. She is like the girl who has a surface charm that catches the eye. They may be kind and sweet to the core if they want people to have an insatiable appetite for her.

One day I saw a girl who was absolutely what I am coming to you get in the matter of friendship. People are liked and loved in just the ratio that they desire it.

And so I would ask this girl who believes the fact that she has no friends who she does to attach other girls to her. To be honest, my dear, aren't you a good deal of a cat?

And you give the other girls a cry claving when they come around?

Don't you say, "Oh yes, Nanette is such a sweet girl and very pretty, but she gets her complaints of the drug store and anybody can see that her hair was powdered. And as for being so much admired by men, anybody could have known if they would run after men the way she does."

And such being the case, is there any particular reason why the majority of your acquaintances show you no interest?

And you the envious thing? Don't you believe everything that anybody says that you don't feel called on to a party that you are not invited to and she tells you what a gorgeous time she had, don't you remark that the people who were not in the party were not in the party and that you would not go to a public ball, or something else that takes the girl off kilter altogether?

When Pansy's father presents her with a diamond ring and she shows it to you, don't you say, "Oh, how pretty it is! I always did like those little chin diamonds!"

And you invariably knock every other girl's clothes, especially if they are better than yours, and do your level best to make her feel cheap and inferior? And if you do these things, don't you think that the girls can do very well without you?

And don't you rather ride yourself upon speaking the truth to your friends? Don't you feel called on to tell Pansy that her hair is unbecomingly and Dorothy that she is looking snippy and Betty that she is getting fat? And Pansy that her old dress made over so well that anybody who didn't know would think it was new?

If you can, you can think of any really good reason why any one of them should seek your presence in order to be told the things they don't want to hear?

And are you one of the kind of people that don't mix with other people?

When a hostess starts to make out her invitation list does she pause when she comes to your name and ask herself if she really wants to invite Caroline Sutters, but if I do she will get into an argument with somebody and I will have to come on the ground of courtesy, or she will be told to somebody or drag in a forbidden topic by the head or the tail that will hurt somebody's feelings and so I'll just leave it out, because it gives me nervous prostration to spend three or four hours keeping the peace between her and other guests?"

And if you are a sport-sport why on earth should anyone want to have you around?

And are you the kind of a girl who tries to monopolize every man she can get her claws on, and who would rather do that than transcend her efforts to attract other girls? And if you are, you can't expect any other girls to pay you back in your own coin.

As for your failure to be popular with men, that's your own fault, too. Look yourself squarely in the face. If a man takes you to ride in his automobile do you spend the time discussing about electric high-power French cars? If a man takes you to a party, beer-and-sandwich supper do you make things pleasant for him by telling about the champagne and hors d'oeuvres that some other man has put for you at a fashionable restaurant?

If you do, why should the man waste his good money on you any more? What return to pleasure does he get when you have only made him feel that you think he is a cheap chump?

FALLING HAIR

Few people realize that their general health affects the thickness and luster of their hair. The hairs are nourished by the blood that circulates through the scalp. If the blood is poor, the hair quality is poor. The hair falls out or it cannot feed the hairs properly.

The secret of hair care is in the condition of the scalp itself. The scalp is the base of the hair. It is the scalp that determines the health of the hair. The scalp is the base of the hair. It is the scalp that determines the health of the hair. The scalp is the base of the hair. It is the scalp that determines the health of the hair.

A common cause of hair loss is a lack of proper brushing and scalp massage. Ten or fifteen minutes a day should be given to these two treatments. By every means possible, the scalp should be kept in good health. The scalp is the base of the hair. It is the scalp that determines the health of the hair. The scalp is the base of the hair. It is the scalp that determines the health of the hair.

Although the hair should be kept clean by shampooing it, it is not necessary to wash it every day. It is better to wash it once a week. The hair should be kept in good health. The scalp is the base of the hair. It is the scalp that determines the health of the hair. The scalp is the base of the hair. It is the scalp that determines the health of the hair.

Three drams of hair oil, one-quarter ounce of hair cream, and one-quarter ounce of hair lotion, mixed together, will make a good hair dressing. The hair should be kept in good health. The scalp is the base of the hair. It is the scalp that determines the health of the hair. The scalp is the base of the hair. It is the scalp that determines the health of the hair.
